Description

A beautiful and substantial late Victorian mahogany sideboard with original-style mirror back, dating from approximately 1880. This impressive antique sideboard is crafted in richly coloured mahogany with a wonderful warm reddish-brown tone and attractive natural grain throughout. Its elegant proportions, decorative carved details and large mirror make it a particularly striking piece of late 19th-century furniture. The lower cabinet features two large panelled doors, opening to reveal a generous storage area with shelving, together with two useful internal drawers positioned directly beneath the top. This provides excellent practical storage for tableware, glassware, linens or other household items. The front is finished with attractive moulded detailing and decorative carved corbels to either side, giving the cabinet a strong architectural character typical of Victorian furniture. It would work beautifully as a traditional dining-room sideboard, drinks cabinet, hallway statement piece or storage cabinet in both a period and eclectic interior. Sideboard / Worktop Height: 91 cm The sideboard is in very good antique condition, solid and sturdy, with age-related marks...
