Description

A rare 18th century (circa 1740) red walnut gateleg table of small proportions and fine patina (colour). This table consists of a solid red walnut top with a moulded edge, having two drawers at each end with a shaped frieze below. The table having turned leg supports, the two gates each having a nicely moulded arcade shaped top rail, the legs joined by turned stretchers and supported on braganza style feet. This table is in very good condition for age with evidence of some old repairs, it is of stable construction and can go straight into a home or collection.
