Description

DESCRIPTION An elegant late 19th/early 20th century George III-style painted and parcel-gilt pier or console table, of particularly attractive long, narrow proportions. The shaped veneered top has rounded ends and a crossbanded border, above a painted fluted frieze decorated with carved gilt and painted paterae and a central swag motif. The table is raised on four slender tapering and fluted supports, continuing the restrained neoclassical design. The combination of the warm timber top with the softly aged painted and gilt decoration gives the table a particularly decorative appearance. At only 45cm deep, it would work very well as a hall, drawing-room or entrance console where a full-depth table would be impractical. DIMENSIONS Height: 81 cm Width: 131 cm Depth: 45cm CONDITION The table is in good decorative condition overall, with marks, knocks, rubbing and wear commensurate with age and use. There is age-related wear and some losses to the painted and gilt decoration, together with marks and repairs to the veneered top. The aged decoration and areas of wear form part of its attractive decorative character. As with all antique and vintage furniture, this piece has be...
