Description

A late 17th-century English walnut armchair, circa 1690. This high-backed armchair is a classic example of the William and Mary period. The tall back is surmounted by an elaborately carved and pierced cresting rail. The uprights are finely turned, and the arms are boldly scrolled with carved handholds. The front stretcher is carved and pierced with scrolling foliage, typical of the best examples of this date. The frame retains a lovely deep original colour and excellent surface patina. It has been newly upholstered in a high-quality beige fabric with a subtle geometric pattern. The chair is solid, very comfortable and in fully usable condition. A stylish and practical piece of late 17th century walnut furniture that combines strong architectural design with genuine comfort. Dimensions: 61 cm W x 144 cm H x 52 cm D Seat H 49 cm
