Item Reference: SA1229908

Date of manufacture: Victorian

Description

A golden Victorian pendant with a halo of simulated pearls enclosing a pretty amethyst glass on top of a beautiful ornate pierced gallery. The pendant would originally have been a brooch and has at some time long past been sympathetically converted to a pendant with the addition of a gold bail at the top. Please note the Victorian longuard chain pictured is not included with the pendant but can be bought separately here: <https://corvidaeantique.com/products/very-long-victorian-golden-longuard-chain-with-albert-clip> SIZE: 3 x 2cm, not including the bail. WEIGHT: 9.0g. MATERIALS: Glass, gold-coloured metal, nine-carat gold bail. HALLMARKS/STAMPS: None. CONDITION: Excellent antique condition. The bail at the top is gold and was likely added later when the piece was converted from a brooch to a pendant. ERA: Estimated Victorian (c.1837-1901).
