Description

A characterful early oak coffer with deeply carved geometric panels centred on lozenge motifs and framed by scrolling foliate detail. The front shows a rhythmic mix of roundels and interlaced carving, all enriched by a warm, time-softened patina. The hinged lid opens to a clean, honest interior with the gentle wear of age. Raised on stile feet and made with pegged joints, it's a solid example of period vernacular craftsmanship — textured, practical, and full of quiet early oak charm.
