Description

Antique 19th century carved Victorian side table in oak, a striking and highly decorative piece displaying beautiful period detailing throughout. Well made and of good quality, this handsome table has an abundance of character and showcases the elaborate styling associated with Victorian furniture. The table features a raised gallery to the top, beautifully decorated with a carved Green Man face that creates an impressive focal point and gives the piece a distinctive appearance. Further highly detailed carving can be found throughout, demonstrating excellent attention to detail. Raised on beautifully carved legs, the table has an elegant yet substantial presence that perfectly complements its decorative design. The oak displays gorgeous natural grain and a rich, warm colour throughout, enhancing the depth of the carved decoration and giving the piece tremendous character. The combination of the Green Man motif, intricate detailing and attractive proportions makes this a particularly desirable and unusual example. Presented in good condition, this impressive Victorian carved oak side table is both decorative and practical. Full of period charm and individuality, it would...
