Description

Antique 18th century Georgian writing table in mahogany, a beautifully proportioned and elegant piece that perfectly reflects the refined simplicity and timeless appeal of Georgian furniture. Well made and of good quality, this handsome table combines practical storage with classic period styling, making it an ideal addition to a study, library, living room or hallway. The table is fitted with three useful drawers to the front, each finished with decorative brass handles and providing convenient storage for stationery, correspondence and other everyday essentials. Attractive reeded detailing to the edges of the top adds a subtle decorative feature, while the elegant tapered legs give the table a light and well-balanced appearance. The mahogany displays gorgeous natural grain and a rich, warm colour throughout, giving the piece wonderful depth and character. Its elegant proportions, understated detailing and quality construction make this a particularly desirable example of Georgian furniture, equally suited to period and contemporary interiors. Presented in good condition, this attractive Georgian writing table is both decorative and highly practical. A fine piece of 1...
