Description

An Edwardian mahogany Sheraton Revival demilune fold-over card table, the semicircular top featuring intricate geometric crossover inlay, opening to reveal a green baize playing surface framed by a gilt-tooled border, set over a frieze decorated with stringing, all raised on slender square tapered inlaid legs terminating in castors. The narrow demilune form serves as an unobtrusive side table along a hallway or drawing room wall. When drawn forward into the room, extending the rear support leg smoothly reveals the concealed card drawer and transforms the piece into a stable, full-circular playing surface. Very good antique condition, displaying light historic surface wear and historic sun-fading across the green playing surface. Structurally sound and ready to place. English, circa 1905.
