Description

A gorgeous Worcester porcelain coffee cup with concave fluted walls and a pretty bifurcated handle with moulded acanthus leaf terminals. Hand painted in fresh, bright polychrome enamels in the "Dragon In Compartments" pattern (also known as the "Bengal Tiger" and "Kylin" patterns) with small gilt accents and gilt detail to the handle and rim. Fretted square mark to the base, c.1770. It measures 5.7cm (2 1/4") high and 6.5cm (2 1/2") rim to rim. In excellent condition: there is a short, very fine hairline at the rim, close ups shown in the last photos. No other damage, repair or restoration. Some rubbing to the gilt on the rim but minimal handling wear otherwise.
