Item Reference: SA1230467

Date of manufacture: 18th Century

Description

An 18th Century neoclassical stipple engraving, in sepia, created by the renowned Italian printmaker Francesco Bartolozzi (1727-1815). The engraving utilises a classical Renaissance and Baroque motif of putti (cherubs) to playfully represent the liberal arts and manual disciplines: sculpture, painting, architecture. A wonderful and collectable example of Neoclassical decorative printmaking, not to mention some handsome looking cupids! Width 40cm. Height 19cm. Please note this picture is glazed, so there may be reflections seen in the photos.
