Description

1950s Triple Strand Cultured Pearl Necklace with Diamond 9ct Gold Clasp A beautifully elegant 1950s triple strand cultured pearl necklace, graduated across three graceful rows and finished with an exceptionally pretty diamond-set 9 carat gold clasp. The necklace is composed of wonderfully lustrous cultured saltwater pearls in a soft creamy ivory colour with delicate pink and green overtones. Graduating from approximately 3mm to 8mm, the pearls range from near-round to gently baroque, giving the necklace the subtle individuality and character associated with genuine cultured pearls. The three strands sit beautifully around the neckline, creating the classic layered appearance so closely associated with the glamorous jewellery of the 1950s. Of particular note is the decorative rectangular clasp. Fashioned in 9 carat gold, it is centred by a single pearl within an elegant scrolling foliate design. Delicate millegrain detailing surrounds the decoration, which is highlighted by sixteen small rough-cut diamonds, lending just the right amount of sparkle without detracting from the pearls. The necklace is accompanied by an AnchorCert Gem Lab Pearl Jewellery Report, confirmin...
