Description

A wonderful looking oak Victorian bureau of smaller scale than most and sitting in marvellous aged condition. This little piece is so attractive with its highly carved front and drawers, bracket feet and brass drop pendant handles. The piece sits well with a deep chestnut coloured glow to the oak which is aged in the right places. When opening the desk area you have a charming section of little pigeon holes, six little drawers and a small centre hidey hole. Condition is well aged with marks and aging to all sections with the piece sitting firm being solid oak so hefty for its size. An utterly charming little piece of Victorian oak furniture 1890.
