Description

Set of Eight Mid-19th Century Bleached Mahogany Dining Chairs English, circa 1850. Further Measurements Seat Height 52 cm, Seat With 44 cm and Seat Depth 39 cm A handsome and particularly decorative set of eight mid-19th century mahogany dining chairs, now presented with a softly bleached finish that gives the timber a wonderfully understated, contemporary appearance. Each chair has an elegant shaped and gently arched top rail above a finely pierced and interlaced vase-form splat, the flowing fretwork lending the chairs an attractive lightness and refinement. The generous drop-in seats have been newly upholstered in a natural linen, complementing the warm, muted tones of the bleached mahogany. Raised on square tapering legs united by stretchers, the chairs retain the pleasing proportions and restrained elegance associated with 19th-century interpretations of Georgian furniture. The bleached surface is especially successful, revealing the subtle grain and character of the mahogany while softening the formality of the original design. The result is a highly usable set which sits comfortably in both traditional and more contemporary interiors. A very attractive and inc...
