

SA1230714

Plaque of WWI destroyer HMS Tartar

Price

GBP 1,400

| USD $1,909 | EUR 1,634

Item Reference: SA1230714

Date of manufacture: Edwardian

Description

Early 20th century wall mounted plaque with a copper outline of the Royal Navy Tribal-class destroyer HMS Tartar. Mounted on an ebonised backboard with plaque: HMS TARTAR 1906 Width: 63 cm. Height: 25 cm. HMS Tartar was a Tribal-class destroyer of the Royal Navy built by John I. Thornycroft & Co, Woolston, Southampton. Laid down on the 13th of November 1905, and launched on the 25th of June 1907. Tartar was 274 feet 3 inches (83.59 m) long, with six Thornycroft boilers which fed steam to turbines driving three propeller shafts. During the final sea trial on the 16th of December reached a speed of 37.037 knots (68.593 km/h; 42.621 mph), a speed record. During the First World War, she served in the North Sea and the English Channel with the 6th Destroyer Flotilla.

Seller Details

Hatchwell Antiques

533 Kings Road London SW10 0TZ United Kingdom

Tel: 020 7351 2344

International Tel: +44 20 7351 2344

