Description

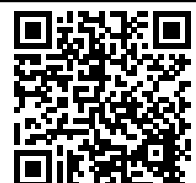

A very rare Scottish antique silver and agate small horn snuff mull. Made in Scotland around 1860. It is unusually small and may have been a woman's mull. It has a lovely agate in the lid which also has an ornate silver surround. There is a tight hinge and the lid fits well. The horn has a tight curl on the end and has a very small split in the material. Overall it is in very good condition given its more than 150 years of age. A very collectable piece. Weight; 20 grams approximately. Free delivery in the UK. Payment by bank transfer, card over the phone, PayPal or Klarna. Using Klarna payments can be split over three months.
