Description

A well-made Edwardian mahogany revolving bookcase with slatted sides and two tiers of open shelving. The square top incorporates an angled reading or writing surface with a small supporting lip – an uncommon and practical feature. An enamel plaque beneath records the Registered Design number 334782, confirming its early 20th-century origin. Smooth in rotation and attractive from every angle, it offers useful storage and a charming working surface for any study or library.
