Description

A finely carved Balinese teak panel, richly detailed in high relief and likely depicting a scene from the Hindu epic The Ramayana. The carving displays impressive depth and craftsmanship, with flowing drapery, naturalistic foliage, and expressive figures typical of traditional Balinese artistry. A captivating decorative piece that carries both cultural significance and sculptural presence. Condition Report In excellent condition with minor surface wear consistent with age. The carving remains crisp and well-defined, with a fine natural patina to the teak. The photographs form part of the condition report, so please review them carefully.
