

SA1231772

Victorian Leather Revolving Desk Chair c. 1890

Price

GBP 1,280

| USD $1,745 | EUR 1,494

Item Reference: SA1231772

Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Description

A beautiful late 19th Century walnut and oak revolving desk or "captain's chair" of large and impressive proportions with very deeply padded antique gold leather upholstery in excellent condition throughout with no tears or stains and with button back, all set on substantial carved cabriole legs with original casters. . The chair has an antique nail finish and is in excellent order throughout with no repairs and only minor dings and superficial knocks to the frame consistent with age and very careful use. . The solid oak and walnut frame set with shaped spindles around the back and with well padded arms on large carved supports. . The cupped feet into which the casters are inset are united by substantial cross stretchers. . Extremely comfortable and capacious, heavy and robust, the chair turns and revolves smoothly and runs well on its casters. . A very high quality Victorian example in excellent condition – a really lovely chair! . . Dimensions are: . 34 inches high, 26.5 inches wide, 21 inches deep. 27.5 inches from floor to top of arms, width between arms is 20 inches, depth of seat is 22 inches and height of back from seat is 17 inches.

Seller Details

Webberley Antiques

East Sussex United Kingdom By appointment only.

Tel: 07765 233266

International Tel: +44 7765 233266