Description

A charmingly small solid and very well proportioned Cuban mahogany chest of drawers made in c. 1770 retaining the original full oak lined drawers with very fine dovetailed joints. . A single board of mahogany forms the oversailing top with thumb moulded border over four graduated drawers with superbly matched and lowing solid mahogany fronts and with a solid single board of Cuban mahogany to each side and an unusual and original, high quality, fielded back panel. . Each drawer with very attractive and substantial early cast brass handles which are, in my view, later replacements. . The chest once had carrying handles at each side but these are no longer present. . All of the drawers open and close smoothly and the quality of construction the thickly cut oak drawer bases are chamfered and fielded – again a high quality detail. . Bracket feet are original also and the whole has a very good colour. . This chest is so well made and has clearly always been well cared for. With another three centuries of care and use I suspect it will still be going strong and look exactly the same. . Condition: A few small dings, marks and light scratches consistent with age and use and some ...
