Description

An Exceptional and Rare 19th-Century Théodore Deck Iznik-Revival Ceramic Umbrella / Stick Stand Paris, France, Circa 1875–1885 A magnificent and exceptionally rare monumental cylindrical ceramic umbrella and stick stand by the renowned master potter Joseph-Théodore Deck (French, 1823–1891). Executed at the height of the European Aesthetic and Islamic Revival movements, this large-scale floor vessel demonstrates Deck's pioneering mastery of high-fire ceramic chemistry and historical Ottoman design adaptation. Dimensions: Height: 37 cm (approx. 14.5 in) Width / Diameter: 18.5 cm (approx. 7.3 in) Color & Glaze Palette: The surface is a masterclass in saturated chromatic brilliance, featuring a rich, glossy manganese purple core ground contrasted against luminous, sunlit ochre and soft-yellow ogival cartouches. The design is densely populated with vibrant cobalt blue and crisp white floral blossoms on intricate green scrolling stems. Interwoven geometric borders, palmettes, and secondary friezes pop with vivid turquoise and electric blue enamel highlights, creating a dazzling, light-catching jewel-like finish characteristic of Deck's finest studio output.
