Description

Brief Description This is a truly magnificent and monumental original Still Life Oil Painting, standing an extraordinary circa 7 feet tall and depicting a breathtaking arrangement of flowers in the tradition of the great Dutch Old Masters. Dating to circa 1920–1930, this impressive work was commissioned for / formerly owned by the historic Hassop Hall in Derbyshire, giving the painting a particularly interesting provenance. The composition depicts an abundant arrangement of flowers overflowing from a substantial ornamental urn, dramatically positioned upon a stone pedestal within the architectural surroundings of a grand country residence. The artist has incorporated a wonderful variety of flowers, including tulips, roses and irises, complemented by two butterflies and a charming bird's nest containing eggs. These beautifully observed details are strongly reminiscent of the elaborate floral still-life paintings produced by Dutch and Flemish artists during the 17th and 18th centuries. The sheer scale of the painting gives it tremendous decorative presence. At approximately 7 feet tall, this is very much a statement piece and would look spectacular within a large count...
