Description

A charming, very small antique pine dresser dating from around 1900, ideal for a kitchen, dining room, hallway or any space where compact proportions are important. The upper section has two open shelves to the left and a small cupboard with an internal shelf to the right. The base provides two small drawers with attractive original brass drop handles, above a cupboard with a shelf and central divider for added support. Originally painted, the dresser has been stripped and finished with a very light wax, leaving a clean, bright appearance while preserving the character of the old pine. It is in very nice condition overall and is almost ready to use; a small catch still needs to be fitted to the upper right-hand door. Overall dimensions: approximately 143 cm high, 83 cm wide and 45 cm deep. Base height: approximately 75 cm.
