Description

Antique 19th century set of six Victorian dining chairs in oak, comprising two carvers and four single chairs. This is a wonderfully inviting set, combining the sturdy craftsmanship of Victorian furniture with graceful carved details and light upholstery that gives the chairs a fresh, elegant look. Each chair stands on turned legs, joined by supporting stretchers that reinforce the solid frames. The carved backs add decorative interest, while the light-coloured upholstery creates a lovely contrast with the warm tones of the oak. The chairs are solidly constructed with no unwanted movement, giving them a reassuring feel for everyday use. The oak displays a rich colour with gorgeous natural grain throughout, enhancing the character of the wood and the quality of the set. Presented in good condition, these charming dining chairs would make a beautiful setting for family meals and dinner parties alike, bringing genuine Victorian character and a welcoming atmosphere to the room.
