Description

Antique 20th century brass bound jug umbrella stand in oak, a wonderfully distinctive piece that brings both practical storage and real decorative presence to an entrance hall. Of good quality and beautifully made, its unusual jug-shaped form makes it far more than an ordinary umbrella stand. The oak body is decorated with beautiful brass banding, which creates a striking contrast against the warm colour of the wood. A gorgeous brass handle completes the design, adding a refined finishing touch while enhancing its period character. The oak displays a rich, warm colour with gorgeous natural grain throughout, complemented by the attractive brass detailing. Its well-proportioned form and original design make it a highly desirable piece that will suit both period and contemporary homes. Presented in good condition, this impressive umbrella stand would make a memorable feature in a hallway or reception area, keeping umbrellas neatly stored while adding warmth, character and antique style.
