Description

Antique Pair 19thC Japanese Porcelain Lidded Jars Pots Floral Decoration Brief Description: This is a beautiful matching pair of original 19th-century Japanese Porcelain Lidded Jars, wonderfully decorated with an abundance of colourful flowers and foliage. Dating to the latter part of the 19th century, the highly decorative pair are of particularly attractive form, with gently rounded bodies moulded throughout with an unusual spiral-fluted design. Each jar is surmounted by its original domed, similarly fluted cover, finished with a moulded knob handle. The porcelain has been beautifully decorated in a rich Japanese palette, with sprays of chrysanthemums, maple leaves and assorted flowering foliage, picked out in shades of iron-red, cobalt blue, green, pink, yellow and brown, together with gilt highlights. Particularly attractive is the way in which the decoration continues around the circumference of both vessels and across their corresponding lids, meaning that they display beautifully from virtually every angle. Although forming a matching pair, there are subtle differences to the hand-painted decoration of each jar, giving them the individual character one would...
