Description

A late 19th century Arts and Crafts freestanding low or coffee table in oak and chestnut, the plain rectangular top above a frieze and with a small drawer fitted to one side and with a brass pull knob, raised on tapering square supports, English circa 1880. Condition: Overall very good, the table is in very good condition with no damage, the drawer slides smoothly and the table stands well with no wobbling, and the table was conceived as we see it today - it has not been cut down from a standard height table. Overall it has a wonderful simplicity with a pleasing colour and patina, redolent of the Arts and Crafts style.
