Description

Antique 20th century sideboard in golden oak, a beautifully proportioned piece that combines generous storage with attractive traditional detailing. Well made and of good quality, it would make a practical and characterful addition to a dining room, hallway or reception room. The upper section features three drawers, each enhanced by delicate carved detailing and fitted with decorative brass handles. The lower cupboards provide useful shelved storage for dinnerware, linens and other household essentials, with decorative brass handles completing the design. The golden oak has a rich, warm colour and extremely gorgeous natural grain throughout, giving the sideboard a welcoming appearance. Made by Grangemoor, the piece has a pleasing balance of everyday function and classic style. There is slight water damage to the lower left-hand side, which does not affect the use of the sideboard. Otherwise presented in good condition, this attractive piece offers plenty of storage while bringing traditional charm to its new home.
