Description

A really adorable Victorian novelty cruet, the kind that are always highly sought-after, this one I have not come across before, the subject couldn't be more charming. The scene features a young boy jumping off of a fence and into a "basket" or "washtub" which is the open salt with a gilded interior. Either side are the pepper and mustard pots held within coiled rope holders. All of this stands on a naturalistic base. On the child's back a diamond shaped English registration lozenge can be found allowing us to date this design to January 1873. Exquisite in every way and remaining in excellent condition, the base measures 4 3/8" x 3" and stands 5" tall. Item ID: 33795 FREE Worldwide Registered Airmail Directly From London, England
