Description

A finely painted mid 19thc papier mache mounted panel of 'Sancho & the Duchess', in a gilded frame. This is after Charles Robert Leslie. Various 'Japanners' were creating work of this quality such as the company Jennens & Bettridge from Birmingham. The panel is surrounded by a shaped & gilded edge & is mounted onto green fabric, framed within a gilded wooden frame. This panel was possibly originally a hand held face screen. This subject was influenced from the 'Don Quixote' books where the character 'Sancho' became the Squire to Don Quixote & they had many adventures together. This oil is of fine quality & on closer examination there appears to be some marks on the surface, however these are fragments from the gilt edging lying on the surface of the panel. Size of complete frame: Height: 16" / 41cm Width: 16.5" / 42.5cm Depth: 1.25" / 3cm Size of panel only: Height: 10" / 25.5cm Width: 11" / 28cm Depth: 0.25" / 0.5cm
