Description

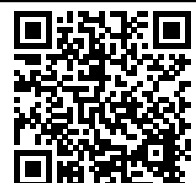

A highly collectible example of a Scottish Mauchline Tartanware spool box made for Clarke & Co. thread makers, of Paisley, Scotland. The box is fitted with its six original dowels to hold thread spools and a central holder for a thimble. The box is made more collectible than most having a central decoupage image labelled "The Prince & Princess of Wales" dating to around 1875. The side of the box is mounted with Ivory or bone eyelets where the thread would be dispensed, each marked with a number corresponding to the thread within. The box is decorated with some gold detailing and the name of the tartan, Prince Charles still intact. A superb example in excellent condition, (one small "bubble" under image, mentioned purely for accuracy), measuring 3 5/8" in diameter x 2 1/4" tall.
