Description

This is a pair of beautiful Victorian gas lamps and we would be prepared to sell them individually if requested, although they look very impressive together. The lights measure 69cm approximately in length and 46cm in width. They have the original copper tops and embossed white glass shades, and it is rare to find lights of this size, in such good condition, with the shades undamaged. The gas pipes were removed by our electrician to allow the lamps to be wired for electricity, and they take a single standard fitting light bulb. They give a good opaque light, (not yellow as appears in Photo 1) We have priced them as a pair, and if the buyer can arrange collection from us in Surrey we will offer a discount on the price. We no longer trade through a retail outlet, but they can be viewed by appointment. For delivery within the UK mainland, we would suggest a courier delivery service to protect the glass shades. The size and rarity of shades this size makes them unsuitable for postal delivery. However, if they are to go abroad, we would arrange for purpose made crates to be made to protect the glass in transit. Please contact us for an estimated cost. The price...
