Description

A late 19thC or early 20thC spelter winged Cherub lamp, holding a torchere shade. It is 24" (61cm) from the base to the top of the shade. The Cherub itself is 13" (33cm) and the base is 6cm high and 18 across. The shade is 7" (18cm) from fitting to the top. The Cherub has a pair of wings and a sweet expression which we've tried to show by lightening the photos, is in perfect condition, no repairs or pieces missing. The cherub is black in colour - darker than the photos. The Torchere shade is an old one, with a small bit of damage on the rim that was repaired many years ago, it cannot be seen unless removed from the fitting. The lamp has been rewired with silk flex and an online switch for the UK market.
