Price

SoldItem Reference: SA208088*Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Description

Large Victorian Painted Wood Turning Lathe This is an unusual piece of Victorian machinery; it is a wood turning lathe The lathe is made mostly in wood which still has its original green shabby paint this is outlined with a lighter string painted outline. The treadle bar is made from wood and the bar above is iron, but I am sure that you can see this in the pictures The belt that drives the lathe is leather it is not broken but it is very worn and would need to be replaced if you want to use the lathe for wood turning Apart from the interest this piece would be to an enthusiast of Old woodworking tools it would make a very decorative item if used for display To give you some idea of the proportions the Lathe is 44" high, 62" long and 27" deep, and the diameter of the wheel is 25" Delivery to Addresses in Mainland England & Wales is included in this price Delivery times vary from 7 to 28 days
