Description

This is a magnificent, all original, Victorian crystal glass chandelier, with beautiful long crystal drops, large glass candle holders and glass arms. We cannot find a signature on it, but it is thought to be accredited to Osler, the famous maker of quality chandeliers. It was previously owned by an antique dealer for many years, and has never been available to the public before we purchased it and had it totally rewired to UK specifications. The chandelier was exhibited at the 1950's Festival of Britain for decorative purposes only, and wasn't for sale. The chandelier is approximately 80cm in length and 80cm across. It has five upright candle lights, one light underneath the central column that illuminates the tiers of drops, and two smaller lights tucked inside the top section. It can be viewed lit up in the Berkshire area; for further details please contact us via email or telephone. Delivery would have to be arranged with a specialist courier.
