Description

An early/mid 19thc East Anglian rocking chair, made of fruitwood. This chair has quite a sophisticated design for a provincial piece of furniture. The top rail has a geometric design with a plain central panel, underneath this is a decorative back splat with a central turned patera. Underneath this is a further back splat with two rails and turned buttons joining them together. The sophisticated shaped armrests are supported by turned supports leading down to a plain seat. The front legs are tapered leading down to the rocker at the base. This chair is in excellent condition and can go straight into a home. Size: Height: 32" / 81cm Width: 19" / 48cm Depth: 30" / 76cm
