Description

Antique wing armchair that's covered in a lovely soft leather & which is extremely comfortable. This armchair is quite old, probably dating to around the 1910-20's period & it has carved walnut front legs, plus kick out back legs. It also has a hump back, nicely shaped wings & a sumptuous cushion seat. This chair has been recovered at some point in this leather & it feels like it still has the original innards. There is plenty of good support & it has generous proportions. The condition is really good, with a bit of scuffing on the legs, which can be taken out quite easily. There is a very small tiny hole on a part of the cushion, which we have shown in one of the images. It's really not that noticeable & remember the image is very close up. Personally, I wouldn't touch it, because the leather is not worn out or anything & it's probably a small burn hole. If needed, I can get my leather guy to put a small patch underneath it & colour it out so the eye doesn't see it, but I really don't think it's necessary. I would say the colour is a dark greyish green, but I'm a bit colour blind. Width - 32", 81 cm Depth - 34", 86 cm Height - 43.2", 110 cm
