Description

An absolutely charming late Victorian Figural Vesta case in the form of a Fox head, complete with his two original glass eyes. The Vesta is made of brass and covered in nickel plate, which has a worn patina, just as it should be with the brass peeking through the nickel plating. There is a sprung lid which opens and snaps shut. The underside has the integral strike where non-safety matches or Vestas would have been struck. Excellent condition, measuring 2" in length.
