SoldItem Reference: SA237050*Date of manufacture: 1900

Description

A magnificent antique English desk-top magnifying glass, originally it would have been a cane or parasol handle, now brought back into use as a fabulous handle for a magnifying glass. The handle is made from period Ivory, undamaged with a good glossy patina. The horse's head is made from English Sterling silver with a hallmark for London 1908, Edwardian in era. He retains his wonderful two original glass eyes. The handle joins the glass with a highly decorative sterling ferule. The glass is nickel rimmed and is of course new (by Hilkinson), making it a very usable and undamaged glass with a good magnification.
