Description

Early 20th.c. African tribal stool of unusual form and decoration seemingly carved from a single block of wood. Dished seat with an applied design made of hundreds of tiny glass beads of four colours hammered into the end grain of the timber whilst it was still soft. Two small notches are cut from the lip of the stool and are incorporated into the design with further beadwork details. On four heavy set legs, slightly flared at the foot. With a repaired break across one side, otherwise very good condition with only a few small areas of missing beadwork. Dimensions: diameter 16", height 13".
