Description

Lowboy Study Desk - Flame Mahogany - c1870 A well presented and solidly constructed English Victorian mahogany writing desk in excellent antique condition. This desirable desk has very pleasing proportion with quality evident in the serpentine front and the rare side slides. The elegant six tapered leg form, with central knee-hole flanked by concave side drawers, stringing to the frieze, circular back plate hanging ring handles, and ebonised drawer edge beading, ensures that this classic piece of English furniture will delight in any decorative theme. This desk offers great storage capacity and superb practicality. Overall a very collectible item of antique furniture which benefits from both condition and the side slides - these being the perfect place for the owner to locate candle sticks during the dark evenings. It is perfectly robust and suitable for daily use. The generous knee-hole and 77cm (30.3") desk height ensure the practicality matches the style. Delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
