Description

A most attractive Georgian silver caddy spoon, with an unusual squared terminal. The handle has delightful stipple engraving and a cartouche with script initials and the bowl is shell design. This interesting example is a good collector's piece as it bears a rather unusual hallmark, struck for a short and very specific period. The mark is for 6th July 1797 to 28th May 1798 and is defined by the duty mark (Monarch's head) being in a shaped 'artist palette' border and not the usual oval. Condition :- Excellent, with no dents or splits. Hallmarks :- Duty mark, Sterling Lion, date letter. Maker's marks soft but readable. Maker :- James Beattie. Bowl width :- 4 cms. Overall length :- 7.75 cms.
