Description

This is a wonderful opportunity to own a genuine pair of Victorian solid brass oil lamps dating to around 1880. They have wonderful green coloured fluted shades and amber swirl design reservoirs. They really stand out because of the size, originally from France these lamps were called piano lamps as they were specifically designed to sit on the top of the piano in order to read the music. They have been fully and professionally restored with the brass being bright and crisp yet retaining the patina you would expect from a lamp of this age. The shades, reservoirs and chimneys are in perfect condition with no chips or cracks and it is in full working order. It is very rare to find a pair of these lamps and would any period home. They measure 20" maximum height and the base is 4.0" in diameter. Delivery within mainland UK is included in the price.
