Date of manufacture: 1800

Description

A handsome set of six silver spoons assayed in Dublin. These good examples are either very large teaspoons or small dessert spoons. They are in fiddle pattern, with the distinctive 'Irish rat-tail' to the reverse of the bowls. To the top front of the shank there is a most attractive armorial of a turret with a bird atop. A wonderful set of Victorian Irish silver spoons. Condition :- Very good with no splits or wear to the bowl tips. Some of the bowls have minor ripples, commensurate with age and use. Hallmarks :- Clear and readable. Maker :- Both maker's mark and retails are present. John Smythe and Neill. (photo 6). Length :- 17 cms.
