Description

Alexander Purvis of LONDON: a pretty and totally original Regency period mahogany BRACKET CLOCK of compact proportions. The CASE is of well figured solid mahogany with original finial; gadroon carved gabled top; carved 'fans' to the front; shaped door; brass ring side handles; gilt fish-scale side panels and supported on original squat bun feet. The 8-day twin-fusee MOVEMENT is of beautiful quality, striking hours on a bell with a finely engraved and silvered dial featuring "Strike/Silent" control in the arch. Original hands and signed both to the dial and engraved on the backplate. Perfect working order. Alexander Purvis is recorded working in North Audley Street (Mayfair) London 1825-1842.
