Description

This fine quality lamp dates from circa 1890 and was once an oil lamp. When the oil holder broke, the previous owners turned it into a table lamp. It is unusual in that the column is smooth, but it is all original and the base underneath is cast iron weighted. Our electrician has put felt on the base and rewired the whole lamp. The measurements are: height up to the base of the lamp holder is 40cm and the base is 16cm square. The height including the shade we have used in photograph three is 67cm. The shade can be included in the price, with no discount, as it is brand new and still in the cellophane wrapper, and postage is estimated at about £10.
