Description

This attractive camel-ground dining sofreh was woven by Baluch tribes in Khorassan Province, north-east Persia around 1900. The dining sofreh was specifically made for general dining - where bowls of food and bread were laid upon it at mealtimes and the tribespeople would sit around the sofreh, eating - just like a western tablecloth! Size: 1.30m x 0.69m (4' 3" x 2' 3").
