Description

A good quality late 19th century French CARRIAGE CLOCK by Joseph Soldano. Housed in its good quality "Corniche" case, the eight-day movement strikes hours and half-hours on a gong, repeating hours at will. It retains its original numbered lever platform escapement and perfect white enamel dial with original blued steel Breguet "moon" hands. Perfect working order and guaranteed for at least two years.  Soldano used very fine platform escapements in his clocks, probably made in Switzerland, which usually carried a unique number which was repeated on the movement and the case.
