Description

A late 18th century Dutch or Flemish school oil portrait on board of a lady wearing a ruff collar, influenced after the master portraitist Van Dyke. LABEL VERSO READS There is a travel label on the back of the portrait which reads: Property of Miss F C Bailey April 29th 1839 Passenger Per Jupiter From (St) Petersburg to London HISTORY OF THE LINER JUPITER. The JUPITER was a Passenger Liner owned and operated by the Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Company Built by John Scott & Sons in the Greenock yard UK. The vessel was constructed mainly of wood and had a gross tonnage weight of 610, with a length of 158 feet. Powered by simple steam engines which were built by Scott Sinclair & Co again in Greenock UK. This vessel was a paddle steamer and could reach up to 9 knots in speed. 1835 Completed as Jupiter for St. George Steam Packet Co, Dublin for their Liverpool/Newry service. Jupiter was the supreme god in the ancient Roman pantheon. Was transferred in 1836 to Dublin/Glasgow trade and ownership transferred to Cork Steamship Co. 1846 Badly damaged running aground in the Avon on the Bristol service. 1847 Purchased by James Hartley, London, a director of P&O & was then char...
