Description

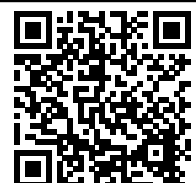

An outstanding and highly desirable antique English tea caddy dating to the early nineteenth century, around 1810. In the form of a house, the front is built up with windows and a central front door with pillars. The double window above the door is hinged to conceal the escutcheon which houses the key; most unusual, charming and as good as they get. The roof of the house lifts to reveal a single compartment caddy, the lid interior with it's original Burgundy coloured velvet. Excellent condition and a must-have for the advanced collector. 5 1/4" x 4 3/4" x 7" tall to top of chimneys. Item ID: 35906 FREE Worldwide Registered Airmail Directly from London, England
